How to Engage With Tynwald

think

Whoever and wherever you are, you can engage with your MHK. Lobbying is one way to do that, either individually or as part of a group. Lobbying is the act of attempting to influence Government decisions.

Lobbying can be simple but effective.

From beekeepers to surfers, from snowboarders to nuns, people can act now to protect what we love from climate change.

do

Welcome your local elected representative to your church. Why not invite your MHK, mayor or local councillor to an event that marks the start of your Eco Church journey? Invite them back for the presentation of your award.

Visiting Trinity Methodist, Kirkby-in-Ashfield, to present them with their second Eco-Congregation Award, local MP Gloria De Piero was particularly impressed by the number of community groups using their premises.

'More than 100 meals are served in the café each week using locally sourced produce,' explained Green Group member Margaret Thorpe. Trinity Methodist hope more churches will engage with Eco Church, 'to help care for God's earth as a vital part of the everyday life of the church, which can also benefit the communities we serve'.

Consider becoming a local lobbyist

Local lobbyists help take messages of justice to the heart of government. It is a powerful way of changing and influencing laws and policies.

Being a local lobbyist for an agency like Christian Aid will involve meeting with your local MHK up to four times a year, or if that is not possible, writing to them on different issues.

You don't need to be an expert on the issues. Christian Aid will provide you with all the information and support you require. All you need is a passion for ending poverty.

do more

Visit your MHK

If you've never met your MHK before, it might feel a little overwhelming. But having a locally based politician who represents you in Tynwald is one of the key features of our democratic system.

Your MHK can't represent you well if you never talk to them about the things you care about! Going to see your MHK can also be more impactful and less scary if you go with other people from your church or community.

Write to, e-mail or phone your local MHK; their details can be found in the front of the telephone book. Get a group together from your congregation. It's a great way to engage others with the issues you are tackling as an Eco Church.

Here are a few tips to help your meeting with your MHK go well. Remember they are normal! And remember their job is to represent you:

- make notes of key points you want to raise so you don't forget anything important;
- read up on your MHK's background to check whether they've held any key positions relevant to your issue;
- be punctual, polite and prepared, but don't be offended if they're running late;
- keep your meeting on track and don't let the conversation be taken off at a tangent;
- present a personal case and explain why you care;
- if you can't answer a question, say you'll get back to them;
- help your MHK understand the issue and leave them a briefing;
- ask your MHK to do something concrete, for example, to get in touch with a Government minister and then get back to you when they have an answer. Later, find out whether they've done what you asked;
- follow up with a phone call, email, letter or social media.

Write to those with influence

Christian Aid offers some additional advice in the leaflet Top Tips For An Effective Letter Or Email:

- remember to include your full name and address;
- use your own words and make it personal;
- keep it short and to the point;
- make sure any handwriting is legible;
- keep your message focused and clear;
- include supporting facts to back up your case;
- ask them to respond to you.

If you find yourself identifying an issue that you feel the Government really has not addressed, you have the option as an individual or a group to lodge a petition of Redress with Tynwald Court on Tynwald Day. This is an excellent way of making the Island's politicians, public and media sit up and take interest. You can find out more about this process here:
